Owen Watford has served in the Product Compliance Testing business for nearly 35 years and started out in this business as a laboratory technician testing various products for multiple manufacturers and industries. His background and area of expertise was developed in Environmental Simulation Testing where he tested products to show compliance to various military, commercial and industrial specifications. Such testing included Climatic Environment, Shock & Vibration, Noise, Explosive atmosphere, Salt Fog and many more.

In 1980 Owen went into sales and with his hands on experience in the testing laboratory he was successful in selling these testing services to manufacturers throughout the Country and to the Government and became known and respected throughout the testing community. Owen's transition from the laboratory to the business sector encouraged him to secure his degree in Business Administration (BBA) at Adelphi University. Owen serves as a member of organizations such as ASNE, SNAME, Navy League of the United States, IEST, AUSA and BCNY.

In 2001 Owen joined Retlif Testing Laboratories where he was appointed Sales Director with concentration on the Maritime Industry and Homeland Security and has added value to the Environmental Simulation Dept. of Retlif in the area of advisement in the ever changing testing requirements prompted by advanced technology.
